SOUTHLAND PAPERS

This group of 22, 888 pieces and 9 bound volumes consists of the professional and personal papers of George Washington Southall, 1810-1851, a lawyer who practiced in Williamsburg, Virginia, and in neighboring counties.

On deposit.
Introductory remarks concerning the arrangement of the Southall Papers.

On account of the size and character of this collection, unusual problems of arrangement arose; and, in order to attain an orderly sequence without separating related papers, the whole was first divided into five main groups:

Letters
Here are filed all letters except those which were originally filed with legal cases or other groups of papers. The arrangement is chronological.

Legal Cases and Estates
The first grouping is mainly geographical, the material being filed under individual counties of Virginia, followed by groups of cases relating to two or more counties, cases unidentified by counties, cases in United States courts, etc.

Within the several groups the arrangement is alphabetical under the name of the plaintiff; but in order to preserve intact certain groups of papers and to concentrate rather than scatter other papers which apparently belong to these groups, the following deviations from a strict alphabetical arrangement have been allowed:

Papers involving an estate or other central interest are filed in one group under the name of the owner, usually the original owner, if known. Some of these groups are very large and consist of papers which would otherwise be scattered under many names.

Suits filed by one person as administrator, executor, committee, or simply "for" another are filed under the second name.

Appealed cases are filed in the county where they originate, if known, and are filed under the original plaintiff, who is usually the defendant in the case before the appellate court.

Cases in which the Commonwealth is plaintiff are filed under the name of the defendant.

Accounts
Here are filed account sheets, invoices, notes, receipts and returned checks. The grouping is geographical.

Personal Papers of George W. Southall
This group contains a large number of account sheets, bills for professional services, notes, receipts and returned checks relating to legal matters. These have been filed under the heading Business Accounts of C. W. Southall.

Other Papers in this group are filed under appropriate headings, as indicated below.

The last main division includes all other papers in the collection, with appropriate subdivisions.
